Question

Describe a time when you had a problem with using an electronic device You should say: When it happened Where it happened What the problem was And explain how you solved the problem at last

Reasoning

- when
  - 2 months ago
  - doing homework as usual
- where
  - school domitory
- problem
  - computer OS breakdown
  - the screen can not display
- solve
  - school library finish homework first
  - search for useful information on the internet
  - ask my classmates for help
- feel
  - memorable
  - learn how to solve peoblems by myself

Answer

> Band score: 6.5

I would like to say that I had a problem with using an electronic device 2 months ago. I was doing my homework as usual, but suddenly my laptop screen went black and the operating system completely crashed. No matter how many times I restarted it, it still wouldn't work. However, the deadline of my homework was coming. So I had to finish my homework 1st. So I went to the school library and used the computer there. After submitting my homework, I start to find some solutions to fix my computer. At first, I search some information on the internet. However, I couldn't find out the , Problems, because I wasn't good at it. So I decided to ask some of my friends for help. who are majored in computer science and have a command on computer. We managed to reinstall the operating system and the laptop started working again. After the experience, I learned how to solve technical problems more independently. I think it is very meaningful and memorable.

- "2 months ago" → better: "two months ago"
- "the deadline of my homework was coming" → unnatural; better: "the deadline for my assignment was approaching"
- "1st" → use "first" in speaking
- Repetition: "So... So..."
- "start" → should be past tense: "started"
- "search some information" → "searched for information"
- "find out the problems" → better: "identify the cause of the problem"
- "who are majored in computer science" → grammar mistake; "who major in computer science"
- "have a command on computer" → unnatural; "are knowledgeable about computers"
- The story is logical and answers all four bullet points clearly.
- Good problem → solution structure, but several grammar mistakes reduce fluency.

Polished

I'd like to talk about a time when I had a problem with my laptop about two months ago.

At that time, I was in my dormitory working on an assignment for one of my courses. Suddenly, my laptop screen went black and the operating system crashed. No matter how many times I restarted it, the computer couldn't turn on properly.

The situation was quite stressful because the deadline for my assignment was approaching, and I still had a lot of work to finish. Instead of trying to fix the laptop immediately, I decided to focus on completing my homework first. I went to the school library and used one of the public computers there to finish and submit my assignment on time.

After that, I started looking for ways to repair my laptop. I searched online for possible solutions, but I couldn't identify the cause of the problem. As a result, I asked a few friends who major in computer science and are quite knowledgeable about computers for help.

Together, we checked the system and eventually decided to reinstall the operating system. Fortunately, that solved the problem, and my laptop started working normally again.

Overall, it was a stressful but valuable experience because I learned the importance of staying calm when dealing with technical problems. I also gained some basic troubleshooting skills that may help me handle similar situations in the future.

Q1

Why are people keen on buying new electronic devices?

A1

Some people want to get a sense of satisfaction by buying new electronic devices. For example, I would be happy if I got a new iPhone. What's more, some people want to try advanced technology, so that they can follow fashion trends. Overall, I think people are keen on buying electronic devices because of their interest in them and the desire to keep up with fashion.

- "get a sense of satisfaction" → understandable, but a more natural expression is feel excited or enjoy owning the latest products
- "follow fashion trends" → electronics are usually associated with technology trends rather than fashion trends
- The answer is relevant but a little repetitive
- You could mention practical reasons, not only personal interest

Polished

People buy new electronic devices for a variety of reasons. One reason is that newer products often come with improved features and better performance. For example, many people upgrade their phones to get a better camera, a faster processor, or a longer battery life. In addition, some consumers simply enjoy trying the latest technology and keeping pace with technological trends. Personally, I would be excited to get a new smartphone because it would make my daily life more convenient and enjoyable.

Q2

What impact do electronic devices have on people?

A2

Electronic devices allow people to access advanced information. For instance, I've learned about new camera technologies by watching mobile phone advertisements. These devices connect the world, especially through mobile phones, enabling us to get knowledge from all over the world via the internet. Overall, I believe electronic devices significantly improve our productivity and society.

- "advanced information" → unnatural; better: information quickly and easily
- "get knowledge" → better: gain knowledge or learn new things
- "improve our productivity and society" → incomplete idea; better: improve productivity and make daily life more convenient
- Good answer, but it could discuss both personal and social impacts

Polished

Electronic devices have had a huge impact on people's lives. They allow us to communicate with others instantly, access information quickly, and complete tasks more efficiently. For example, smartphones enable people to study, work, shop, and stay connected with friends wherever they are. In addition, the internet gives us access to a vast amount of knowledge from around the world. Overall, I believe electronic devices have greatly improved productivity and made everyday life much more convenient.

Question

Describe a home that you like to visit but do not want to live in You should say: Where it is What it is like Why you like to visit it And explain why you would not like to live there

Answer

> Band score: 6.0

I would like to talk about a house in the countryside that I enjoy visiting but do not want to live in. It is far from the city center, so it is neither crowded nor noisy. The environment must be beautiful and peaceful. I imagine that I living in a house surrounded by trees and flowers, and enjoying fresh air every day. The reason why I like to visit is that I can enjoy the natural scenery and the fresh air, which makes me feel relaxed and peaceful. Additionally, it helps me keep a clear mind so that I have more energy. However, there are also some reasons why I don't want to live there. It would be inconvenient to commute between the house and school, which might take up a lot of time and energy. What's more, I am a student now, and my main task is to study every day and improve myself, so I have to focus more on my studies rather than enjoying life in the countryside.

- “must be” 不自然，口语里更适合用 “is probably” 或直接描述
- “I living” 语法错误，应该是 “imagine myself living”
- “the natural scenery and the fresh air” 表达重复，可以更简洁自然
- 后半部分句子太长，信息堆积明显
- “improve myself” 比较空泛，雅思口语里容易显得模板化
- 内容整体比较自然，但缺少具体细节，所以还停留在 6 分左右

Polished

I'd like to talk about a house in the countryside that I really enjoy visiting, although I wouldn't want to live there permanently.

It is located quite far away from the city center, so the area is very quiet and peaceful. The house is surrounded by trees, flowers, and open fields, which makes the environment feel very relaxing.

What I like most about visiting this place is the fresh air and the natural scenery. Whenever I stay there, I feel refreshed and recharged. It's a good place to take a break from busy city life.

However, I don't think I would enjoy living there for a long time. One reason is that transportation is not very convenient, so commuting to school or other places would waste a lot of time.

Another reason is that I'm still a student, so I need to focus mainly on my studies. Living in the countryside might be too quiet and isolated for me, and I think I would miss the convenience and opportunities of city life.

Overall, I think it is a wonderful place for short visits, but not somewhere I would choose to live permanently.

Q1

Do Chinese people like to visit others' homes?

A1

Yes, many Chinese people enjoy visiting others' homes to communicate with friends and relatives. For example, my father used to take me to visit my uncles, because he believed it was an important way to maintain good relationships with family members. What's more, It is also a Tradition in China, so I think most Chinese people like to visit others' homes.

- "communicate with friends and relatives" → better: socialize with friends and relatives
- Unnecessary capitalization: "It", "Tradition"
- Good personal example
- The answer directly addresses the question

Polished

Yes, I think many Chinese people enjoy visiting other people's homes. It is a common way to socialize with friends and relatives, especially during festivals and family parties. For example, when I was younger, my father often took me to visit my relatives during chinses lunar new year. These visits helped us maintain close family relationships and spend leisure time together. In addition, home visits are an important part of traditional Chinese culture.

Q2

What do Chinese people do when they visit others?

A2

In China, people often chat and drink tea when visiting others. My father prefers drinking tea while chatting with his relatives. Tea is the most famous drink in china and has a long history.

- "china" → should be capitalized: China

- The answer is a bit short for Part 3
- Could include more activities besides chatting and drinking tea

Polished

When Chinese people visit others, they usually spend time chatting and drinking tea. In some cases, they may also share a meal together or bring small gifts as a sign of respect. For example, my father enjoys drinking tea and talking with his relatives whenever we visit them. These activities help strengthen social and family relationships.

Q3

What kind of place do people in your country like to live in?

A3

Most people like to live in a house in the countryside,. the house is surrounded by flowers and trees, so the scenery is very beautiful. People can enjoy natural and fresh air. Moreover, the environment provides a peaceful atmosphere which makes people feel refreshed and. Recharged. Therefore, many people in China prefer living in the countryside rather than in the city center.

- Grammar error after the comma: "the house is surrounded..."
- "natural and fresh air" → simply fresh air
- "refreshed and recharged" is good, but punctuation is incorrect
- The biggest problem is the idea itself: "Most people like to live in the countryside" is probably not accurate. In reality, many Chinese people prefer cities because of jobs and services.
- Try avoiding overly absolute statements such as most people

Polished

It depends on the person. Some people enjoy living in the countryside because they appreciate the peaceful environment, fresh air, and beautiful natural scenery. Others prefer cities because they offer better job opportunities, transportation, and public services. Personally, I can understand why some people are attracted to the countryside, as it provides a relaxing environment that is quite different from the fast-paced lifestyle of large cities.

Q4

What's the difference between homes in cities and those in the countryside?

A4

I think the biggest differences are the population and infrastructure. In cities, there are many people., So it's very crowded and noisy. However, transportation is very convenient., And people can enjoy modern city life. By contrast, people can enjoy a peaceful environment in the countryside. It is surrounded by trees and flowers and provide a plenty of natural scenery.

- Punctuation issues throughout
- "provide a plenty of natural scenery" → should be provides plenty of natural scenery
- Good comparison between cities and the countryside
- Could include housing size and lifestyle differences

Polished

I think the main differences are related to the location and the environment. In cities, people usually have access to better transportation, healthcare, education, and entertainment facilities easily. However, cities are often crowded and noisy. In contrast, the countryside tends to be quieter and less stressful, with more green plants and natural scenery. In addition, houses in rural areas are often larger and offer more outdoor space than apartments in cities.

Question

Describe a story/book with animals in it You should say: What animals are in it What the story/book is about Why you read the story/book And explain what you think of this story/book

Answer

Band score: 6.0

I would like to describe a book with animals in it. It is called Animal World, which is a famous book in my country. I want to talk about the leopard because it was my favorite animal. Leopards are very fast and interesting to many people. Their appearance is also special with many spots on their skin. They are very handsome and charming, so I like them very much. The book tells the story of the life of leopards. These animals often live in the jungle and hunt other animals for food. I read this book when I was seven years old.; My mother shared it with me. I think it was a great book, and I learned a lot from it. It broadened my horizons and opened my mind. What's more, I also realized that we should protect the environment and preserve the habitats for animals.

- “very handsome and charming” 不太自然，通常不用来形容动物
- “Their appearance is also special” 表达有点中式，可以更具体描述外貌
- “the story of the life of leopards” 有些重复
- “I read this book when I was seven years old.;” 标点错误
- “broadened my horizons and opened my mind” 太模板化
- 内容整体不错，但可以增加一些个人感受，让答案更生动自然
- 句型稍微单一，缺少更自然的连接

Polished

I’d like to talk about a book featuring animals called Animal World, which I read when I was a child.

The animal I found most interesting in the book was the leopard, and it became my favorite animal after reading it. Leopards are extremely fast and powerful, and I was especially impressed by their beautiful spotted fur and hunting skills.

The book mainly described how leopards survive in the wild, including how they hunt for food and live in jungles and forests. It also introduced many other wild animals and their natural habitats.

I first read this book when I was about seven years old because my mother bought it for me and sometimes read it together with me before bedtime.

I really enjoyed the book because it was both entertaining and educational. After reading it, I became much more interested in wildlife and nature. It also made me realize how important it is to protect animals and their living environments.

Answer 2

> Band score: 6.5

I would like to talk about a book called 'Black Cat Detective.' It is a famous children's book in China. The main character is a black cat who is also a detective. He is very clever and helpful because he always finds out the truth and catches criminals. He also plays an important role in improving society within the story. When I was young, my mom always read this. Story to me because it taught me to be a kind person. I really got a lot from the book, and it its lessons inspired me to help improve society and build a better world. What's more, it is also important and necessary for us to help others and get on well with each other.

- "this. Story" → punctuation error: this story
- "it its lessons" → grammar mistake
- "improving society within the story" → unnatural expression
- The answer covers all four bullet points, but the plot description is too brief.
- The ending becomes a little abstract (improve society and build a better world), which sounds memorized.
- More specific details about why you enjoyed the book would make it stronger.

Polished 2

I'd like to talk about a children's book called Black Cat Detective, which was one of my favorite books when I was young.

The main character is a clever black cat who works as a detective. In the story, he investigates different crimes, solves mysteries, and protects other animals from dangerous criminals. The book also features many other animals, such as mice, birds, and insects, which makes the story interesting and entertaining.

I first read this book when I was a child because my mother often read it to me before bedtime. Later, I started reading it by myself because I found the detective stories exciting and wanted to know how each case would be solved.

What I like most about the book is that it is not only entertaining but also educational. Through the adventures of the black cat, I learned the importance of being honest, brave, and willing to help others. In addition, the story encouraged me to think carefully and pay attention to details when solving problems.

Overall, I have very positive memories of this book because it was both enjoyable and meaningful. Even today, I still think it is an excellent children's story that teaches valuable life lessons in an interesting way.

Q1

Should schools teach children about animals?

A1

> Band score: 6.5

Yes, I think it is meaningful and educational for schools to teach students about animals. Humans and other animals live together on earth, so we should know about them and protect them as well. Many children love animals like dogs, cats, and rabbits because they are very cute. Therefore, learning more about animals can help children get on along with them better. What's more, it is important for children to be aware of the importance of protecting animals so that they can safeguard both the animals and their habitats.

- "on earth" → should be "on the Earth" or simply "in the world"

- "get on along with them better" → incorrect expression; should be "get along with them better"
- "meaningful and educational" is understandable, but sounds repetitive and slightly memorized
- Good explanation of both learning and animal protection
- The answer is relevant and well-developed for a Part 3 question

Polished

Yes, I believe schools should teach children about animals because it is both educational and beneficial. Humans and animals share the same environment, so it is important for children to understand how animals live and why they should be protected.

In addition, many children are naturally interested in animals such as dogs, cats, and rabbits. Learning about them can help children develop empathy and learn how to interact with animals responsibly. Another reason is that schools can raise awareness of environmental and wildlife conservation.

Overall, teaching children about animals can increase their knowledge, encourage compassion, and help them develop a stronger sense of environmental responsibility.

Q2

Some people think pets should not be kept in cities. What do you think?

Answer

Band score: 6.0

Yes, I think it is meaningful and educational for schools to teach students about animals. Humans and other animals live together on earth, so we should know about them and protect them as well. Many children love animals like dogs, cats, and rabbits because they are very cute. Therefore, learning more about animals can help children get on along with them better. What's more, it is important for children to be aware of the importance of protecting animals so that they can safeguard both the animals and their habitats.

- "get on along with them" 语法错误，应该是 "get along with them"
- "meaningful and educational" 有点重复，可以更自然
- "Humans and other animals live together on earth" 表达有些生硬
- "because they are very cute" 有点简单，可以增加更深入的原因
- 结尾部分逻辑不错，但表达稍微正式，不够口语化

Polished

Yes, I think schools should definitely teach children about animals because it is both interesting and educational.

Animals are an important part of the natural world, so children should learn how humans and animals live together and why protecting wildlife is important.

In addition, many children naturally enjoy learning about animals such as dogs, cats, rabbits, or even wild animals because they are cute and fascinating.

Learning about animals can also help children develop kindness and a sense of responsibility toward other living creatures.

Most importantly, schools can teach students the importance of protecting animals and their habitats, which may encourage them to care more about the environment in the future.

Q3

Many people regard pets as members of their family. What do you think?

A3

Band score: 6.0

I think it is an interesting and necessary behavior. In today's fast -paced society, many people require the companionship of pets to live a positive life. As a result, many pets are regarded as family members, especially dogs and cats. For example, I have a cat named Mimi. She is very cute, and I am very happy to get on well with her. So, I think many people regard pets as members of their family because of the demand for companionship of lovely animals.

- "interesting and necessary behavior" 不太自然，native speakers 很少这样表达
- "fast -paced" 空格错误，应该是 "fast-paced"
- "live a positive life" 搭配不自然，可以换成 "feel happier" 或 "feel less lonely"
- "get on well with her" 没错，但和宠物搭配可以更自然
- "demand for companionship of lovely animals" 表达比较生硬，中式英语明显
- 结尾有点重复，可以更自然总结人与宠物之间的情感联系

Polished

Yes, I think it is quite common for people to regard pets as members of their family nowadays.

In today's fast-paced society, many people feel stressed or lonely, so pets can provide companionship and emotional support.

For example, I have a cat called Mimi, and she has become an important part of my daily life. I often play with her after studying, which helps me feel relaxed and happier.

I think many people become emotionally attached to their pets because animals can bring comfort and joy to their lives.

That's why some people treat their pets almost like family members rather than just animals.

Q4

Do many people keep pets in your country?

A4

Answer

Band score: 6.0

Yes, keeping pets has become popular nowadays. For example, many people keep dogs and cats as part of their families. My family has a cat and a dog., And they are regarded as our family members. They provide comfort and joy to us. I think, nearly fifty percent of Chinese people keep a pet in their house., And they also take responsibility for the lives and health of these animals.

- "dog., And" 标点错误，而且不要频繁用 And 开头
- "keep a pet in their house" 不够自然，通常说 "have pets at home"
- "take responsibility for the lives and health" 表达太正式

- “I think, nearly fifty percent” 逗号位置错误，而且数据太绝对，口语里最好不要随便给具体比例
- 内容有点重复，可以增加“为什么越来越多人养宠物”

Polished

Yes, keeping pets has become increasingly popular in my country in recent years.

Many people keep pets such as dogs and cats because they can provide companionship and emotional support.

For example, my family has both a cat and a dog, and we treat them like part of the family. They bring a lot of joy and comfort to our daily lives.

Nowadays, it is very common for people to have pets at home, especially in big cities where some people may feel lonely or stressed.

At the same time, I think most pet owners understand that keeping a pet also means taking responsibility for its health and daily care.

Q5

What are the advantages of keeping a pet?

A5

Band score: 6.0

There are many advantages to keeping a pet, although we should take responsibility for their health and daily care. I think the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. Pets can provide a lot of joy and pleasure, which makes people enjoy keeping a pet. A pet can be regarded as a family member or friend, so their companionship is also important and meaningful. What's more, patiently caring for a pet can make people more aware of the importance of protecting animals and the environment.

- “joy and pleasure” 语义重复，口语里说 “joy and comfort” 更自然
- “which makes people enjoy keeping a pet” 有点重复，因为前面已经在说 advantages
- “their companionship is also important and meaningful” 表达有点生硬
- 结构整体不错，但可以增加更具体的生活化例子
- 结尾 “protecting animals and the environment” 有点突然，可以更自然地连接

Polished

There are many advantages to keeping a pet, although pet owners also need to take responsibility for their health and daily care.

One major benefit is that pets can provide companionship, comfort, and emotional support, especially for people who live alone or feel stressed.

In many families, pets are treated almost like friends or family members because they can make people feel happier and less lonely.

For example, playing with a pet after work or study can help people relax and improve their mood.

In addition, taking care of animals can teach people to become more patient and responsible, while also helping them understand the importance of respecting and protecting animals.

Q6

Why do people always tell children stories with animals?

A6

Band score: 6.0

Telling children stories with animals is educational and necessary. Children can learn about the qualities of animals such as bravery and independence. For example, tigers are often brave, so people can learn from them and behave bravely. While some lions cooperate with each other to hunt for food, we can learn the importance of teamwork. Additionally, children can acquire knowledge in this interesting way, which is why people often tell them stories featuring animals.

- "educational and necessary" 不太自然，necessary 用在这里有点奇怪
- "the qualities of animals" 表达比较生硬，可以换成 "valuable lessons"
- "people can learn from them and behave bravely" 有点重复
- "While some lions cooperate with each other" 逻辑连接不自然，better 用 "for example"
- 结尾句子有点长，可以拆开让口语更自然
- 整体思路不错，但可以更强调 "children enjoy animal stories"

Polished

I think people often tell children stories with animals because these stories are both interesting and educational.

Children usually enjoy animals, so they are more willing to pay attention to stories featuring animals than serious lessons.

At the same time, animal stories often teach children valuable qualities such as bravery, kindness, and teamwork.

For example, lions hunting together can teach children the importance of cooperation, while stories about brave animals may encourage children to become more confident.

In addition, using animals in stories makes learning more fun and easier for children to understand and remember.

Question

Describe a law on environmental protection You should say: What it is How you first learned about it Who benefits from it And explain how you feel about this law

Answer

Band score: 6.0

I would like to describe a law on environmental protection related to river pollution. The law focuses on water quality and aims to reduce pollution. Since water resources are vital for humans, as we drink water every day, it is necessary to conserve water and improve its quality. I first learned about this law from news reports, which stated that leaders of residential areas should take responsibility for their local rivers, while the government focuses on solving the issue of pollutants. After a period of time, the water became cleaner, and the smell was no longer as terrible. I think the law will be beneficial for all residents, including people living downstream. What's more, it is meaningful and necessary because we should protect our environment, and ensure there is enough clean water to drink.

- “Since water resources are vital for humans, as we drink water every day” 有点重复
- “leaders of residential areas” 表达不够准确，可以更自然
- “the government focuses on solving the issue of pollutants” 有点生硬
- “meaningful and necessary” 比较模板化
- 内容逻辑不错，但可以增加更多个人感受，让答案更像口语交流
- 句子整体偏长，可以拆开让表达更自然

Polished

I’d like to talk about an environmental protection law related to river pollution control.

This law mainly focuses on improving water quality and reducing pollution in rivers and lakes. Since clean water is essential for daily life, I think protecting water resources is extremely important.

I first learned about this law through news reports and social media. According to the reports, local governments were required to take responsibility for protecting nearby rivers and reducing pollution.

After the law was introduced, the water in some rivers became much cleaner, and the unpleasant smell gradually disappeared. I think this brought clear benefits to local residents, especially people living near the rivers.

Personally, I strongly support this law because environmental protection is becoming more important nowadays. Clean water not only improves people’s quality of life and health, but also helps create a healthier environment for future generations.

Q1

What kinds of rules do schools in China have?

Answer

> Band score: 6.0-6.5

There are many rules and regulations in Chinese schools. Students should take care of public facilities and infrastructure. In libraries and classrooms, they should not speak loudly or play games. Furthermore, students must obey the rules to show respect for teachers and peers. Overall, students on campus should follow these regulations to improve the campus environment and atmosphere.

- "China's schools" 不够自然，口语里更常说 Chinese schools
- 内容有点偏“规定罗列”，可以加入“why”让答案更像真实交流
- “improve the campus environment and atmosphere” 有点书面化

Polished

There are many rules and regulations in Chinese schools. For example, students are expected to keep quiet in classrooms and libraries, and they should also take care of public facilities.

In addition, students need to respect their teachers and classmates by following school rules properly. I think these regulations are important because they help create a more organized and comfortable learning environment.

Q2

Do you think school rules are important?

Answer

Band score: 6.0-6.5

Yes, I do. There are many students and teachers in schools, and they can get on well with each other thanks to the rules and regulations. For example, students should obey the rules so that they do not disturb others' studies. What's more, following the rules actually gives students enough freedom. Overall, it is important and necessary to have school rules to maintain a friendly campus environment.

- "get on well with each other thanks to the rules and regulations" 表达有点生硬
- "gives students enough freedom" 逻辑不够清晰，可以换成“creates order”
- 结尾重复 “important and necessary” 比较模板化

Polished

Yes, definitely. I think school rules are important because there are so many students and teachers on campus, so schools need clear regulations to maintain order.

For example, if students speak loudly or break classroom rules, it can easily disturb other people’s studies. In my opinion, reasonable rules help students study in a more peaceful and efficient environment.

Q3

Are children unhappy with the school rules?

Answer

Band score: 6.0

I think it depends on the individuals. On the one hand, some children are willing to follow rules because they can study better in a friendly environment. On the other hand, some people may feel that they lose their freedom with so many regulations. Because they cannot be aware of the importance of rules when they were young. For example, I believe it is important and necessary to have rules in schools because they protect our safety and help us study better.

- "depends on the individuals" 更自然的是 depends on the person
- "Because they cannot be aware..." 是残句
- 后面重复表达 “important and necessary”
- 逻辑有点重复，例子不够具体

Polished

I think it depends on the person.

Some children are happy to follow rules because they understand that rules help create a better learning environment.

However, others may feel uncomfortable with too many regulations because they think their freedom is limited. This is mainly because young children sometimes do not fully understand why rules are necessary.

For example, I like to follow rules and regulations to maintain a peaceful and stable life.

Q4

How can parents and teachers help children understand and follow rules?

Answer

Band score: 6.0

Children can learn from their parents at home and from their teachers at school. Parents and teachers can help students become aware of the importance of rules., So that they can enjoy more freedom and feel a sense of safety. What's more., They can also understand the side effects of breaking rules, which courages them to obey the them better. For example, my mother always tells me not to break traffic rules when I cross the road, and she also sets a good example for me. Overall, I think parents and teachers can help children understand and follow rules better.

- 标点错误：rules., So / What's more.,
- "courages them to obey the them" 语法错误
- “enjoy more freedom” 不太自然
- 例子不错，但可以更口语化

Polished

Children can learn a lot from both their parents and teachers. Adults should explain why rules are important instead of simply asking children to follow them.

For example, parents can teach children to follow traffic rules when crossing the road and also set a good example themselves.

In this way, children can better understand the consequences of breaking rules and become more willing to follow them.

Q5

What are the rules people should obey at work?

Answer

Band score: 6.0-6.5

People should obey many rules at work. They are supposed to show respect for their boss and teammates, so that they can get on well with each other. What's more, it is also important and necessary to protect public infrastructure and facilities. For example, I always try my best to finish my work on time and maintain good relationships with my teammates.

- "boss and teammates" 可以更自然地说 managers and co-workers

- "public infrastructure and facilities" 不太适合 workplace 语境
- 个人例子不错，但略简单

People need to follow many rules in the workplace. For example, they should respect their managers and co-workers and complete their tasks on time.

In addition, employees are expected to follow company policies and use office equipment properly. I think these rules are necessary because they help people work together more efficiently and professionally.

Q6

What is the purpose of punishment

Answer

> Band score: 6.0-6.5

I think the purpose of punishment is not merely to penalize people, but rather to help them understand the rules better. It can encourage people to obey regulations and behave more responsibly. For example, teachers often require students to complete their homework on time.; If they fail to do so, they may face consequences like doing extra assignments. Overall, the main goal of punishment is to guide and motivate people to follow rules more effectively.

- 整体内容不错，逻辑清晰
- "on time.;" 标点错误
- "penalize people" 对 IELTS 口语来说稍正式
- 可以增加一点“education instead of fear”的自然表达

I think the purpose of punishment is not simply to punish people, but to help them understand the importance of rules and responsibilities.

For example, teachers may ask students to do extra work if they fail to finish their homework on time. This can remind students to manage their time better in the future.

In my opinion, effective punishment should help people learn from their mistakes instead of just making them feel afraid.
